Dear Mr. Casey:

No one really knows what happened in the Yurchenko Case. Moreover, a number of well trained analysts associated with this Institution are quite concerned about the psychological/psychodynamic understanding of what went wrong. We are also interested in the formulation of those concepts which would govern the understanding of training of agents in debriefing of defectors and the techniques used in their work.

I believe that a small group of our staff is well qualified to learn these matters and to provide consultation in these matters to the Agency and that improvements can be garnished.

We are quite serious in our wish to be helpful, involved, and quite knowledgeable about how and why people function. We have consulted with other Institutions before and are capable of doing the same with the CIA.

I can be reached through the Center at 212-689-7700 ext. 361 or in the evening after 9 p.m. at 212-675-5371 or you can leave a message at my private office 212-677-1866 if the Agency believes a dialogue would lead to a fruitful association.

Mr. William J. Casey
